DAY ONE

MORNING

DIVE INTO HISTORY & COASTAL CHARM

Griffiths Island, with its seasonal colony of shearwater seabirds, winding pathways and the spectacular 1859-built basalt lighthouse at the eastern tip, is a great place to explore. Keep an eye out for the resident swamp wallabies and the occasional echidna. A short walk across the causeway from Martins Point gets you onto the island. Dogs are not allowed on the island, and visitors are urged to stick to the walking tracks, which wind through the low-lying scrub. Nesting birds, including the shearwaters that migrate from the northern hemisphere each year, create burrows for their young hidden in the sand, and it's important these nests aren't disturbed by wandering sightseers.

ACCESSIBILITY: Walking the Island - The complete circuit of the island is 2.9 km and takes about 50 minutes. Alternatively, it takes about 25 minutes to walk 1.25 km to the lighthouse, along the formed riverbank, with two optional pathways: along the beach or a limestone track. The pathway along the limestone track to the lighthouse is accessible for mobility aids, bikes and prams. Beyond the lighthouse, the track is rough, over sand and rocks in some places, and walking along the southern beach sections depends upon the height of the incoming tide.

LUNCH

Picnic with a Past

Your next stop is Battery Hill. On the way, be sure to stop by East Beach Fish 'N' Chips for some delicious takeaway. Their crispy fish and perfectly cooked chips are a local favourite. With your meal in hand, continue along Griffiths Street to Battery Hill. As you enjoy your fish and chips, you'll be surrounded by fascinating remnants of the past. The cannons and fortifications offer plenty of opportunities for imaginative play and exploration. Meanwhile, you can relax and take in the stunning views of the coastline. The combination of delicious food, historical intrigue and beautiful scenery makes Battery Hill an ideal spot for a memorable outing in Port Fairy.

HISTORY: Battery Hill, established in the 1800s, is a historic site with cannons and fortifications that were originally built to protect the town from the perceived threat of Russian warships. This spot is perfect for a picnic, offering a unique blend of history and scenic beauty.
